On the Hill

Sharon Mackay Named Western Regional Office Administrator

Supplemental Appropriations Approved

On May 25, President Bush approved a "dire emergency" supplemental appropriations bill for fiscal year 1990 for various Federal programs. Included in this bill is an additional $1.2 billion for the Food Stamp Program (FSP) and $3.1 million for the Commodity Supplemental Food Program. The additional FSP appropriation is contingent upon receiving an official request from the Administration for the $1.2 billion. The cost of the entire bill, which also includes aid to Panama and Nicaragua, is over $4.3 billion.

Bertini Addresses 1990 Food Safety Conference

Assistant Secretary Catherine Bertini answers questions about the food assistance programs in an interview with reporter Benita Zahn of WNYT-TV, Albany. Bertini was a featured speaker at the 1990 Food Safety Conference for New York State Newspaper, Radio and Television Journalists held at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York.

Addressing the topic of "Protecting America's Poor," Bertini discussed USDA's role in food safety and food assistance programs for low-income Americans. "A food supply that is both abundant and safe; efficient and Sharon Mackay was installed May 15 as the FNS Western Regional Administrator. Prior to her new appointment, Mackay served as regional administrator of the Department of Health and Human Services' (DHHS) Office of Human Development Services. She has been involved with many social service program issues, including Head Start, Child Welfare/Foster Care, and Developmental Disability Programs.

Mackay's public service career began in the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services. She entered Federal service with the Department of Labor in Seattle in 1972. For the next 17 years, Mackay worked at DHHS in the Family Support Administration, Social Security Administration, and social and Rehabilitation Services at the national and regional levels, including Seattle, Atlanta, and San Francisco. At the national level, Mackay served as director of Management and Regional Operations in the Family Support Administration.

effective food assistance programs for Americans who need help; and vigilance to protect program benefits from abuse--these are components of a food policy that works for American farmers and for consumers at all income levels," she said.

Asian Pacific Americans Recognized

This year's national Asian Pacific American Heritage Month celebrated the theme, "Commitment, Contribution, and Community." Keynote speaker Edmund (Ed) Moy, director of the Health Care Financing Administration at the Department of Health and Human Services, illustrated the theme with situations from his own life at a headquarters' observance during May.

Moy said that commitment is a thread that runs strong throughout the Asian community. Growing up amidst friends with divorced parents, Moy asked his own parents what makes their marriage so strong. "Their answer was simple. They said they'd made a commitment for life, and nothing would ever change that," Moy said. Moy said that he's lived by those standards, and adds

"This belief holds true for almost everything Asians do. It's an important part of our values."

Contribution and community are also important to Asians. "We must realize the importance of community involvement and just look out for one another," Moy said.

The audience had a chance to meet with the speaker at the reception that followed. A variety of foods were served, including an authentic Asian food buffet graciously donated by China Delight. Other food contributors included Copeland's, Peking Gourmet, and Dunkin' Donuts.

NACCD Conducts Fourth Annual Meeting

The National Advisory Council on Commodity Distribution recently held its fourth meeting in Washington, D.C.

The 16 members serving on the Council represent the various recipients and organizations involved with the food distribution programs. The Council meets twice a year and provides an annual report to the Secretary and appropriate congressional committees.

The first morning of the meeting was devoted to USDA briefings including a legislative update by Assistant Secretary Catherine Bertini; timeliness of school year 1990 purchases of Agricultural Marketing Service commodities by Kenneth Clayton, deputy administrator; an update on the Cash in Lieu of Commodities evaluation by Fran Zorn and John Endahl of the Office of Analysis and Evaluation; discussion of nutrition issues by Nutrition and Technical Services Division; and a discussion of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service issues by Ronald Wilson.

The remainder of the meeting was set aside for the Council to formulate recommendations for its second report to Congress. The recommendations will be officially released when the report to Congress is issued. The Council continues through 1992, but there will be some changes in membership before the next meeting.

Council members were presented with certificates of appreciation in a special ceremony in Assistant Secretary Bertini's office.

Civil Rights Employees Honored

Nine FNS employees were recently among nationwide USDA staff receiving awards for their contributions to equal opportunity at the Third Annual USDA Civil Rights Award Ceremony. Awards were also presented to employees from various USDA agencies nationwide.

"Departmental competition was unusually keen," said Lori Pletcher of the Office of Advocacy and Enterprise, as she opened the presentation.

All regional office Civil Rights Division directors received group awards for their outstanding work on the FNS civil rights complaint resolution project. As the result of their contribution, program beneficiaries are receiving prompt service in response to their civil rights complaints. The directors are Beverly Watts (MWRO), Brenda Styles (MARO), Haynes Pressley (SERO), Beverly Hayes (NERO), Ola Moore (SWRO), and Evelyn Stafford (MPRO).

Brenda Bryant was recognized for her leadership in managing the FNS EEO counselor system. Under Bryant's guidance, FNS has had an excellent record in resolving employee EEO complaints during the informal stage.

Joseph Justice, officer in charge of the Richmond, Virginia, Field Office, received recognition as part of a group (Virginia Food and Agriculture Council) for its work with local limited-resource farmers.

A reception was held at Park Center, providing an opportunity for Administrator Betty Jo Nelsen to meet all award winners and to offer her appreciation along with letters of recognition.
